About the programme :

Earth Retaining Structures(ERS) are elements in civil engineering projects. They are standalone structures or in combination with other elements. Earth Retaining Structures' design and construction varies depending on topography of land, site conditions & constraints as well as time allocated for the projects. Parameters for design and construction site condition, geotechnical investigation, ground water presence. loads, type of ERS to be selected for design and construction methodology as well technologies are adopted.

By attending this two day special programme the participants will learn about how Earth Retaining Structures are very much important in civil engineering projects in addition to providing necessary support to the soil, retaining walls also help to reduce the surface runoff by reducing sharper gradients. This reduces the speed at which water travels over the surface and thereby reduces erosion.

You know it is INSTRUCT programme worth spending your time and money on attending this knowledge sharing programme !
Make use of this opportunity and delegate your construction personnel.

The programme is aimed to ...

- ... Overview on Earth Retaining Structures
- ... Loading and Forces on Earth Retaining Structures
